Purposes of Course

- (1) Learn about community development
- (2) Provide applied research assistance to a community-based organization
- (3) Develop a community food system report for Trenton

Project Description

We will be working with Isles. Inc., a community development corporation, in Trenton. Created in 1981, Isles has become a leader in the community development movement. Isles' citywide scope and broad approach to community development sets it apart from other community based organizations. Among its many programmatic areas, Isles addresses environmental improvement, neighborhood planning, regional organizing, housing development, and community gardens. Community gardening, the organization's first program, was intended to improve community food security by making good food more accessible. Today, Isles has forty-three gardens, engages youth through urban ecology, exercise, nutrition, and educational programs; it also tackles brownfield redevelopment, and develops strategies to otherwise improve community health especially around lead and asthma. Isles is concerned about community access to healthy food in Trenton.

Isles' staff asked for our assistance to develop a report about access to healthy food in Trenton. Isles will use the report to better understand food availability and consumption in Trenton. The organization will also use the report to work for change to improve the delivery of healthy, affordable food to all Trenton residents.

To create the report, we will:

- Determine the extent of hunger in Trenton
 - Gather Census data on income, school lunch and breakfast usage, and public food assistance use
 - Conduct focus groups to understand resident perceptions of hunger
- Explore what people know about food and how they behave
 - Do people have time to shop and cook?
 - What do people want to eat?
 - Do people know how to cook? Are there cooking classes in Trenton?
 - Identify where people get food
- Can people access the food that they want?
 - How does the cost of food differ from the suburbs?
 - What sorts of food are available?
 - Conduct a food store survey
- Document the food delivery system in Trenton
 - Map food distribution networks
 - How does food get to Trenton consumers?
 - Where are the decisions made about what food reaches consumers? What choices are available to shopkeepers?
 - Could access to quality food be improved?
- Identify and map the points of food delivery
 - Where are the supermarkets, small stores (bodegas), restaurants, food pantries, soup kitchens, community gardens, emergency food providers, public/private schools, and farmers markets?
- Document the public food assistance system
 - How do WIC, USDA food vouchers, and Food Stamps work?

- Map stores that accept WIC and USDA food vouchers and food stamp acceptance locations
- What food options do people have with this assistance?
- Why aren't more people who qualify for these programs using them?
